General Information

There are over 120 miles of paved trails throughout the City of Omaha with a number of those trails connecting to trails outside of the City. A map of the metro area trails titled “Paths of Discovery” is available online and in hard copy form at community centers, libraries, bike shops, and other establishments around the city. A listing and short description of some of the trails are listed below. All trails are concrete surfaced unless otherwise noted.

Trail	Status

Barrington Park Connector Trail

Open

Big Papio Trail

Under Construction

- The water issue on a section of the trail between Pacific Street and S. 105th Street has been addressed and the trail is open to all trail users. The uphill shoulder to the trail is rock, not grass.
  Use caution when traveling north on this section of the trail. We are looking at solutions to this shoulder section.
- Union Pacific Railroad is still doing some work on the railroad bridge over the trail just north of Seymour Smith Park from time to time through at least the end of May 2024. They have said that the work will be light work and that there is no need to close the trail at this time. All trail users should still use caution when in this area. Questions regarding the bridge work should be directed to David Renz at dbrenz@up.com.

Mandan Park

Under Construction

As of Thursday, February 22, 2024, the natural surface trails at the south end of Mandan Park will be closed for construction of the Mandan Park Nature Center. All natural surface trails from the turnaround south will be closed to all trail users until the completion of the nature center. This includes the GREEN TRAIL from the turnaround south, the entire ORANGE TRAIL and the entire RED TRAIL. All Natural Surface Trails north of the turnaround remain open. In addition, the park road and parking spaces from Harrison Street north to the turnaround are also closed to all park and trail users. Closed trail sections, park road and parking spaces should reopen for use in April 2025. For additional information contact Dennis E. Bryers, FASLA, CLARB, PLA, Landscape Architect-Park & Recreation Planner II at 402-444-3798 or bryers@cityofomaha.org.
